When Moses was born, the Israelites were enslaved in Egypt. Pharaoh was afraid that one day they would fight against him so he ordered his soldiers to kill all the baby boys. To save Moses, his mother put him in a basket and floated him down the River Nile.

It was the tenth plague that finally made the Pharaoh let them go. The eldest son in every family, including the Pharaoh's, died. The Israelites marked their doorposts with lamb's blood so that they would be safe. The Israelites fled but soon after the Pharaoh changed his mind and sent his army after them.

The illustration shows two large, arched stone tablets standing side-by-side. Each tablet contains five commandments, numbered I through X. The tablets are set against a background of stylized clouds. A small star is visible in the top right corner of the right tablet.

I
You shall have no gods before me

II
You shall not make any idols to worship

III
You shall not take the Lord's name in vain

IV
Remember and keep the Sabbath holy

V
Honour your father and mother

VI
You shall not kill

VII
You shall not commit adultery

VIII
You shall not steal

IX
You shall not bear false witness

You shall not covet your neighbour's wife nor goods

Moses promised God that the Israelites would keep all the Ten Commandments.

The illustration depicts Moses standing on a rocky, mountainous terrain. He is wearing a long robe and a sash, and he holds a staff in his right hand. A large, jagged lightning bolt strikes the ground behind him. The sky is dark and stormy. A small star is visible in the top right corner.

After three months of travelling, the Israelites arrived at the foot of Mount Sinai, where God called Moses to meet him at the top of the mountain.

Moses had to climb the mountain in a thunderstorm.

The illustration shows a young Moses, dressed as a royal prince in a long tunic and a sash, holding a sword. He is standing in a desert landscape with pyramids in the background. He is talking to an Egyptian man who is wearing a traditional headdress. In the distance, a line of enslaved people is being led by a man. A small star is visible in the top right corner.

Moses grew up in the palace as a royal prince. One day, he lost his temper and killed an Egyptian who had beaten an Israelite enslaved person to death.

He had to flee to another land.

The illustration shows Moses standing in a desert landscape, looking at a bush that is on fire. He is wearing a long robe and a sash. The background shows rocky hills and a small star in the top right corner.

Moses lived in the land of Midian and worked as a shepherd for 40 years. One day, in the desert, he heard the voice of God from a burning bush.

God asked Moses to lead his people out of enslavement in Egypt to the Promised Land.

Moses floated down the river where the Pharaoh's daughter found and rescued him. She brought him back to the palace and raised him as a son.

The army chased the Israelites to the banks of the Red Sea where they were trapped.

God told Moses to lift up his rod and, as he did, so the waters parted to make a dry path.

The Israelites were free but they still had nowhere to live. They were searching for a land called Canaan, which they had been promised by God.

The journey was long and they were hungry. Moses promised that God would provide food.

To their amazement, the next day they woke up to discover that the ground was covered with white food that tasted like honey.

When their water ran out, God told Moses to strike a rock with his rod. As he did this, water ran out and they were all able to drink.

When all the Israelites were safely at the other shore, Moses raised up his rod again and the water closed on the Pharaoh's army who had been chasing them. God had saved the Israelites once more.

Moses went back to Egypt and asked the Pharaoh to free his people. The Pharaoh did not want to lose them so he refused.

God was angry and unleashed ten plagues on the Egyptians.
